Seafood

The word's out about this sustainable seafood-ery with long high-stool counter looking down to the waves. Yes, there's a wet bar and takeaway section (the fish 'n' chips are great) but it's fun to sit in with a glass of wine from the small but well-formed list. Chefs Ross Wilson and Joel Best are careful to label all their seafood, and grill, sear, poach, steam it (in a light green curry perhaps) or bake it into a pie. Co-chef Hiro Fujita brews a feisty chilli miso soup, slices fine sushi, sashimi and inside-out rolls, and does a legendary tuna tataki salad.
